Specialist Social Care and Education training provider, The Loddon Training & Consultancy honoured at National Training Awards 2010

Hampshire based Social Care and Education Training Provider, The Loddon Training & Consultancy has been honoured with a prestigious National Training Award in recognition of their outstanding contribution and commitment to training, learning and development in the workplace.

The Loddon Training & Consultancy was presented with a Regional National Training Award at the South East Regional Ceremony, held at Oxford Town Hall on Tuesday 5th October 2010. The Loddon Training & Consultancy was recognised in the Providing Education and Training Award category for developing in-house trainers to deliver a proactive training programme in services supporting individuals who challenge.

Janet Bromley Principal of The Loddon Training & Consultancy said: "The National Training Awards is a distinguished accolade. We are delighted to have received this recognition for the training which we have developed over the past 20 years. We hope this will raise our profile throughout the UK and indirectly benefit the organisations and individuals we support."

The Loddon Training & Consultancy provide intensive training and a consultancy service using positive approaches to behaviour support in order to develop a range of integrated proactive programmes in education, health and social care settings. Where staff are working with individuals who have autism, challenge the system, and need extra support in order to achieve an enhanced and valued lifestyle. Their training includes the BILD (British Institute of Learning Disabilities) accredited training programme PROACT-SCIPr-UK[®].

Run on behalf of the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) by UK Skills, the National Training Awards inspires and encourages UK industry to invest in training and development as a route to achieving outstanding organisational and individual success. Winning an Award is recognition of best practice and provides a benchmark for standards of excellence in training in the UK. City & Guilds is the premier sponsor of the 2010 National Training Awards.

Simon Bartley, Chief Executive of UK Skills which manages the National Training Awards said:

“I would like to offer congratulations to all regional and UK winners for the National Training Awards 2010. Achieving an award is a fantastic achievement and one that all winners should be really proud of.

“Now more than ever it is essential for organisations to continue to invest in the development of their staff. The UK’s future, after all, can only be strengthened and sustained by people who have the skills needed to meet the demands of today’s globalised economy.”

National Training Awards, brought to you by UK Skills

- The National Training Awards recognise those individuals and organisations throughout the UK that have achieved outstanding business and personal success through investment in training. Winning an Award is recognition of best practice and provides a benchmark for standards of excellence in training in the UK.
- Run on an annual basis on behalf of the Department of Business, Innovation and Skills by UK Skills, the Awards are also supported by Skills Development Scotland, The Welsh Assembly Government and the Department for Employment and Learning, Northern Ireland.
- Established in 1987, the National Training Awards are free to enter and are unique because the seven Award categories encompass all sectors, sizes of organisations, training providers and individuals. The Award categories also recognise all types of training from formal qualifications programmes to informal learning and coaching.
- The National Training Awards aim to develop entrants throughout the Awards process, from the advice and self-assessment guidance given at the outset to the constructive feedback given to each entrant after judging. Finalists and Winners of the Awards are honoured through a series of regional networking events and a national ceremony.
